EMSI Accepts Position on NAILM Committee

Scottsdale, AZ – June 28, 2005 – The National Association of Insurance Litigation Management (NAILM) has formed a litigation management technology advisory committee. The purpose of this committee is threefold:

- To increase the insurance industry's awareness of litigation related emerging technologies.
- To enhance the insurance industry's interest in those and other technologies.
- To promote networking and cooperation between Insurance Industry leaders and technology providers.

Stacy Lee, National Sales Director for EMSI's Litigation Services division, has accepted a position on the advisory committee. For over 15 years, NAILM has worked to strengthen the relationship between its insurance carrier members and companies like EMSI who partner with them in the management of litigated claims.

"Our affiliation with NAILM and commitment to promoting the use of emerging technologies in improving litigation management services is an important focus for us", states Lynda Johnson Lorenz, Senior Vice President of EMSI. "We are honored that NAILM selected us and will work closely with NAILM on technology initiatives which focus on the future success of the litigation management industry," she continued.

EMSI has been and continues to be one of our strongest Partners in fulfilling the NAILM's mission of advancing insurance litigation, stated "Quintin L King, esq, President and CEO of the NAILM. "Because EMSI is on the cutting edge of the blending of litigation and technology, we are proud to have Stacy on our committee", King further stated.
